Learning Experiences in Master of laws

March 2024

I have recently graduated with a law degree from Sittway University and I am attending Master of Laws (1th year) Commercial at Dagon University. Throughout my academic journey, I have excelled in courses such as Banking and Finance Law, Employment Law, Transport Law, Company Law, Taxes and Revenue Law and Conflict of laws.

Banking and Finance Law provide a deep understanding of the legal framework governing financial institutions, transactions and regulations. Additionally, consumers in financial transactions, such as disclosure requirements, fair lending practices and protection against fraud and deceptive practices. Furthermore, I have delved into the complexities of cross border transactions, trade agreements and dispute resolution mechanisms. With a focus on real world case studies, our professors have provided invaluable insights into navigating the intricacies of global commerce.

Inside the classroom, the students have been actively engaged in groundbreaking research projects, exploring a wide range of topics ranging from fintech regulation to corporate governance reforms. This process fosters critical thinking, analytical skills and the ability to contribute to the advancement of legal scholarship.

Beyond the classroom, the students are actively involved in community outreach initiatives. Whether through legal clinics, advocacy campaigns, policy research projects, and court processes and codes.

Now, we are on two months holidays and looking forward to the next semester for more insights and updates on legal education and career pathways.
